

October 11, 2010

Dear Colleague,

The 41st annual meeting of the Husserl Circle held in New York City at the New School for Social Research this past June was an immense success. Special thanks are in order to the Convenor, James Dodd, who did a superb job of assembling a first-rate program and attending to the every need of the many members and friends of the Circle in attendance. The level of presentation and discussion was once again very high.

The members present at the business meeting voted to accept Andrea Staiti's invitation to host the 2012 meeting at Boston College and Sonja Rinofer's invitation to host the 2013 meeting at the University of Graz in Austria. Members also agreed that members must be current with their dues by the submission deadline (February 1, 2011) in order for their papers to be eligible for the program.

The next meeting of the Husserl Circle will take place at Gonzaga University Florence, April 27-30, 2011. A letter from Patrick Burke, the Convenor, is enclosed.

With best wishes,

Burt Hopkins
Permanent Secretary

bhopkins@seattleu.edu